Jerome Nadeau

Friday, November 19

Chloé Beaulac – 11:30 - 12:00

With an interest in ancient architecture, Beaulac brings to life the library of Celsus located in an ancient Roman city in Western Turkey. Beaulac uses print media and acrylic in her piece entitled 'Ephesus' to portray a contemporary take on classical architecture. She is in her third year of the Print Media programme and a 2009 finalist in the Albert-Dumouchel prize.

Jerome Nadeau – 12:00 - 12:30

A third year photography student, Nadeau believes that "photography is by its nature a kind of abstracting process." Thus, he explores the medium of photography through a series of photographic works. Nadeau has shown his work in galleries such as Push and Espace Jean-Brillant.
